COMPTON TELLS ABOUT JAPAN'S QUEER PEOPLE

Peace And Contentment Prevail In Famous Land Of Cherry Blossoms

LIVING COST IS HIGH

Prince Of Wales' Visit Gives Tokyo A More Festive Season

BY E. C. COMPTON,
Formerly Editor of Coshocton Times.

TOKYO, April 25. (By Mail)—Cherry blossom season, the coming of the Prince of Wales and the opening of the Peace Exposition have given Tokyo a very festive appearance, yet Japan, altho quaint and novel, does not come up to Hawaii in general beauty and is far inferior when it comes to climate.

This is my first impression and I reserve the right to modify it, in case I should remain here long. Ambassador Charles Warren is reported to have advocated the passage of a law by the U. S. Congress and the Japanese Diet forbidding any American to write a book about Japan until he has resided here at least two weeks. I have been here long enough to feel like "busting into print."

My wife and I arrived at Yokohama March 27 on the Siberia Maru and I have taken a temporary position on the Japan Times, published in Tokyo. On the whole, Japan's people seem to be quiet and contented and not looking for trouble. One of the first things to jar upon the nerves of the visitor from America is the condition of the unpaved streets and sidewalks, which are dusty one day and muddy the next as April showers are more frequent in Tokyo than in Coshocton.

Japan has the world beat when it comes to high cost of living. A small unfurnished Japanese house rents for from $40 upward in American money. Hotel and boarding house rates in Tokyo and Yokohama range from $5 to $10 per day (American plan.) Prices of clothing and other commodities which have declined in other parts of the world continue high here, owing to the heavy import duties. Tobacco is especially expensive, a fair sigar costing 35 cents and an ordinary package of

FILM BAR TAKES JOY OUT OF JOYCE

Peggy Hopkins Joyce, international beauty, who had romances with three millionaire husbands and for whom two men are said to have died, will not be seen on the screen in America, motion picture owners, in convention in Washington, having adopted a resolution to bar all her pictures. On landing in New York from the Mauretania Peggy denied reports she had been told officially to leave France and stay away twenty years. She brought $1,000,000 worth of jewels with her, and their examination took customs men all day. One, a ring worth $20,000, was seized, but Peggy declared duty had already been paid on it. She denied she was to wed Jack Dempsey.

BRAINS, NOT BEAUTY MUST HELP WOMAN WIN IN BUSINESS WORLD SAYS BARNARD COLLEGE FOUNDER

NEW YORK, May 16.—"Leave sex behind all ye who enter here" would be an extremely timely desk motto for every business and professional woman, Mrs. Annie Meyer, one of the founders of Barnard college and author of successful plays on the "woman question" said today.

In her latest play, "The Advertising of Kate," Mrs. Meyer has her woman go out to lunch with a man client, inclined to play upon her sex rather than to attend to the business that was to be settled at the noon hour. This has caused a good deal of debate among some folk who marshal the morals of the universe for inspection each day.

"I insist that it was right—and is right—for a woman to go to lunch or dinner with a man business acquaintance if the move behind the going is right and her head level" Mrs. Meyer explained. "Of course she must have sense enough to dress suitably—but attractively and must not try to combine business with pleasure."

Mrs. Meyer holds the belief that manners and attire for the office are second as to how the office woman shall conduct herself with the men with whom her office position brings her in contact.

This successful author and observer of life believes that it is woman's duty to make herself attractive—but not so exceedingly attractive that the mere male of the species will lose his business sense.

"Woman must win the business world by brains—not by mere beauty —" she concluded succinctly.

JEWEL THIEVES MUST WAIT TO WED, SAYS DISTRICT ATTORNY

NEW YORK, May 16. — Luman Beebe and Miss Ruth Hayden, accused of stealing a bag containing $100,000 worth of jewels belonging to Mrs. Mitchell Harrison, wife of a millionaire Philadelphia Sugar refiner, continued in the Jefferson market prison today their effort to be married.

It was not decided whether it will be permitted up to this afternoon but the odds are against it.

Beebe claims a porter put the jewel calse in a car he was driving to the station and that in a desire to marry, he fell into temptation when he opened the case and saw the contents.

The position of the district attorney, is that marriage of the pair would prevent the girl testifying against her husband.

RUSSIANS HESITATE BEFORE PASSING ON PROPOSAL OF ALLIES

America Rejects Offer Of A Seat In Conference At the Hague

GENOA, May 16—After apparently accepting in principle the allied proposals for a meeting at The Hague June 15, for appointment of a mixed commission to study the Russian problem in detail by taking testimony from a committee of Russian experts, George Tchitcherin head of the Russian delegation today suddenly asked the political sub committee of the economic conference for 24 hours in which to make final reply. The request was granted.

George Tchitcherin, head of the Russian delegation, appeared before the political sub-committee of the conference and announced Russia's acceptance but asked for elucidations. He asked that certain conditions be fulfilled. He protested against the exclusion of Germany at the meeting and pointed out the Soviet had a treaty with Poland as well as with Germany.

Signor Schanzer, of the Italian delegation, pointed out that the positions of Poland and Germany were identical.

The Russians made a number of protests, they insisted that Germany be represented and also asked that some capital other than The Hague be selected as the meeting place.

The American note rejecting the invitation to participate in the meeting at The Hague was read today.

The British delegations it appears have not yet given up the hope of having the United States represented at the Hague.

LONDON, May 16—The refusal of the U. S. to take part in the meeting at The Hague for the appointment of a commission to study the Russian problem details and report a series of recommendations has turned Premier Lloyd George is said to feel that optimism to pessimism, according to advices received here today from Genoa.

It is now understood that Lloyd George will return home on or about Friday. He will rest a few days before taking up the general election question or any domestic problems.

Lloyd George is said to feell that the Genoa conference may be considered a partial failure and the proposed meeting at The Hague doubtful as a result of the decision of America to maintain her aloofness.

ROTARY O. K.'S DRIVE TO KEEP LIBRARY OPEN

Formal approval of the proposed drive for funds to finance the Carnegie library was given by the Rotarians at their regular meeting Tuesday noon. The proposal will be submitted to the Kiwanis at their meeting Wednesday noon.

A meeting of representatives from all the organizations in the city that have approved the proposal, is scheduled for Wednesday evening. It probably will be held in the offices of the Home Building and Loan Co.

Some doubt as to whether sufficient money could be raised by a popular subscription campaign, was expressed by a member of the library board of trustees Tuesday. He offered the suggestion that the Y. W. C. A. headquarters be moved into the library building, and that the secretaries act as librarians. He says there is plenty of room in the library and that by saving the salaries of the librarians for four months, the greater part of the current expenses would be eliminated.

The chief librarian receives $85 a month and the assistant $75, a total of $160 a month.

AUTOMOBILE AND THIEVES CAUGHT AT NEWARK, OHIO

When arraigned before Mayor W. S. Tish Tuesday afternoon on a charge of stealing an automobile belonging to Joseph McKeown, John Tillman, 19 of Canton pleaded guilty and Benjamin Marrett, 38, of Columbus plended not guilty.

Tillman said that he had stolen the automobile and later picked up Barrett, police said.

Both men were bound over to the grand jury, and in default of bond were placed in the county jail.

Benjamin Barrett, 38 of Columbus and John Tillman, 19, of Canton were in the county jail Tuesday afternoon, awaiting arraignment on a charge of stealing an automobile belonging to Joseph McKeown.

The two men were apprehended in Newark about midnight Monday.

The automobile was stolen from Main-st Monday evening about nine o'clock. When McKeown missed it, he immediately telephoned police in Newark, Zanesville and Columbus. Shortly after calling Newark he was notified that the car had been found there and two men in it were arrested.

McKeown, Sheriff Ernest Darr and Officer Robert Hagans went to Newark early Tuesday morning and returned to Coshocton with the auome bile and two prisoners just before noon.

The two men who were arrested in the car will probably be arraigned in Mayor W. S. Tish's court, and then bound over to the grand jury.

FLIGHT WITH CHILD ENDS IN ARREST OF JACK CLENDENNING

When he attempted to run away with a child which he claims to be the father of, James (Jack) Clendenning was arrested Monday evening and arraigned on a charge of resisting an officer. The charge was filed by E. C. Rinnor, porbation officer.

Clendenning pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $10 and costs The fine was suspended and he paid the costs.

Rinner had gone to the home of Grace Johnson in the rear of Fifth-st to get her four children to have their blood tested. Clendenning, who happened to be there, evidently feared the officer was going to take the children into custody permanently, and he grabbed the one he claims belongs to him and ran. The officer caught him, and had him arrested.

The four Johnson children are being certified to the state department of public welfare, division of charities, and it is necessary that blood tests be made.

REFUSES TO PAY $25 FINE; MAYOR GETS HIM JOB AT CANTON

George Sauer came to Coshocton to get work at the Clow plant.

He got the work, but not at the Clow plant. Mayor W. S. Tish decided has was needed worse at the Canton workhouse.

Sauer's absolute refusal to pay a fine of $25, placed against him on a charge of intoxciation, influenced the mayor to make his decision.

Inability to obtain $900 bond on three other charges, in addition to the fine, influenced Sauer to refuse to pay the fine.

Sauer was arrested by Officer Hankins Sunday evening. He was in a taxi and when the officer approached, he threw a bottle from the car and broke it on the pavement. He pleaded guilty to the charge of intoxication, but pleaded not guilty to charges of possessing, receiving, and transporting intoxicating liquor. He was unable to give appearance bonds totaling $900, for the three charges.

He said he was to start to work Monday morning at the Clow plant, to take the place of one of the moulders who had walked out on a strike some time ago. He produced a letter signed by a Clow official, offering him employment.

The letter warned him against mentioning the fact that he was a moulder, upon his arrival here, and instructed him to say that he was a mechanic, pipe-fitter, or anything but a moulder.

Clow officials refused to sign a bond for the man. He had the money to pay the fine, police said, but even after paying it, he could not have been released, because of the other three charges. This fact influenced the man to stand pat in his refusal to pay the fine assessed for intoxication, according to police.

Arrangements were made for Officer Carl Johnson to take Sauer to the Stark co workhouse Monday, and Sauer was warned if he returned here he would be prosecuted on the other three charges.

WOMEN'S VOTE IN PENNA. PRIMARY MAY UPSET DOPE

Old Penrose Machine Is Confident Of Victory For Alter For Governor

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 16—The Pennsylvania primary election got under way today with both sides in the Republican factional struggle for state control speculating as to how far the women would influence the result.

In the first statewide primary contest in which women have had the right to participate in Pennsylvania, it was generally conceded that they possessed the power collectively to overturn the old Penrose machine and to place Gifford Pinchot, personal friend and ally of the late Theodore Roosevelt in the governor's chair. But the old line Republican leaders scouted the suggestion that enough women would rally around Pinchot to cause the defeat of Attorney General Alter for the nomination for government.

It is admitted that if women flocked in large numbers to the polls to vote for Pinchot that there was the possibility of a landslide, which they declare is all that can prevent Alter from winning.

But they asserted that outside of the club and society women who espoused Pinchot's candidacy as a fad, that the women would generally vote as their men vote.

Three weeks ago the Alter spokesmen—some of them the shrewdest politicians the late Senator Penrose had as his lieutenants, conceded that Pinchot would have won easily, but they claimed alignment of former Senator Penrose and anti-Penrose leaders who are supporting Alter has developed an organization since then which is capable of mustering enough votes to elect him.

Pinchot and his managers on the other hand claim they are sure of victory and will reach Philadelphia with a vote big enough to overwhelm the majority they concede that city will give Alter.

"The sentiment of the state is overwhelmingly with us," said Pinchot. "The only thing left is to Shades of David Harum! Who owns the horse?

INDICTED CHICAGO LABOR LEADERS ASK IMMEDIATE TRIAL

CHICAGO, May 16.—Demand for an immediate trial by Big Tim Murphy, Frenchy Mader and Con Shea alleged higher ups in the Chicago bomb and gun war will be met with vigorous opposition by Chief of Police Charles G. Fitzmorris, the Chicago crime commission, and the state's attorney it was announced today.

The law enforcing agencies, it was stated, are not yet prepared for trial. There is still some evidence to be collected which the authorities say will keep Murphy, Mader and Shea in jail if it does not result in their hanging.

Chages were made before the plea of the labor leaders before Chief Justice Kickham Scanlon in the criminal court today that a million dollar slush fund is being raised for their defense. Murphy, Shea and Mader and five others are charged by the grand jury with the killing of two policemen last week.

"We have established the fact that those against whom murder indictments have been lodged actually engaged in a conspiracy to commit crimes out of which killings resulted," said Henry Barrett Chamberlain, head of the Chicago crime commission. "We have three astounding confessions."

Mr. Chamberlain, charging the existence of a million dollar slush fund to aid the indicted labor men, recalled that several weeks ago, Fred Mader who is president of the Chicago Building Trades council had written to every similar council in the U. S. requesting contributions.

STATE PRESENTS ITS STRONGEST EVIDENCE AGAINST BLIZZARD

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., May 16—With only three days remaining for the state to complete its case against "Bill" Blizzard on trial here for treason, it was indicated today that the most important of the evidence gathered to be used against the youthful labor leader has been reserved for the last.

The prosecution began this morning to bring out proof that the march of 12,000 union miners across three counties in southern West Virginia last summer was not a spontaneous uprising but a carefully planned war to overthrow the sovereignty of the commonwealth. It is up to the state to bring out proof to sustain the treason indictment which was upheld tentatively by Judge J. M. Woods, three weeks ago, on the theory that the treasonable conspiracy would be shown during the trial. So far the state has produced proofs only of the alleged overt acts committed in furtherance of the alleged insurrection.

Interest in the prosecution's final drive to convict "Bill" Blizzard was heightened today by the arrival at Harpers Ferry of Don Chafin, sheriff of Logan-co and known as "The College Gun Man" by the warring miners now on trial here.

Chafin, who was one of the most conspituous figures in the West Virginia mine trouble is expected to be a witness for the state. He came in from Washington, D. C. with the prosecution counsel Testimony already presented is that the miners wanted to hang Chafin, declaring he stood in the way of unionization of Logan-co.

Among other witnesses summoned to appear this week are Col. W. C. Eubanks, who was in command of the state forces in Logan-co at the battle of Blair Mountain; Col. Jackson Arnold, superintendent of the state police; Capt J. R. Brockus, of the constabulary and a number of the mine operators of the Mingo field.

WASHINGTON, May 15—President Harding tackled the soldier bonus problem again today, listening an hour to Senator Smoot's explanation of his plan to provide compensation for World war veterans by giving them paid up insurance policies in lieu of cash. Smoot said that the president had not indicated his approval of the insurance plan but had been interested in its provisions.

Two Paint Facts That You Should Know

WHEN you dip a brush into the average paint and spread it on a surface, you find it takes a lot of brushing to make it cover evenly. Also, that no matter how careful you are, it still shows the brush marks, or little ridges.

Between every one of those ridges is a thin streak. Therefore, the paint film is only as strong as those thin streaks.

Now, dip your brush into a can of Lowe Brothers High Standard Paint and spread it on the surface. You will be delighted to see how thoroughly it covers. Further, it will level up and dry with a smooth surface, without any ridges or thin streaks.

Doing that, you can easily see why High Standard costs less per job. It cut down the cost of painting. And because it forms a uniformly thick film, it lasts longer, and looks better as long as it lasts.

Come in and ask for details and literature.

ALKALI IN SOAP BAD FOR THE HAIR

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust dirt, dandruff and excessive oil The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months

HOW TO CONSTRUCT AND OPERATE A RADIO TELEPHONE RECEIVING SET

By Harry F. Dart, Compiler of the Radio Operator's Course for the International Correspondence Schools

ARTICLE 4.
TWO-STEP AMPLIFIER SET

A combined detector and amplifier is indicated in the accompanying sketch. The extreme left part of the circuit represents the usual antenna with the primary and secondary coils and their auxiliaries. The incoming signal impulses are passed thru an electron tube A acting as a detector, but instead of them passing thru the telephone receivers, the signal impulses pass thru the primary (often marked input) winding B, of an iron-core transformer C. For best operation, the resistance of this winding of the transformer should be about 10,000 ohms, necessitating a winding of many turns of very fine wire. By transformer action much of the energy in the primary is transferred from the primary to the secondary winding D which is often made up of about one-tenth as many turns as are used in the primary.

The secondary coil D is connected between the filament and the grid of another tube E, and the energy which the iron core transformer C receives is supplied to the grid of tube E. The energy is amplified or strengthened several times under favorable conditions and the signal impulses pass from the plate of tube E thru another iron-core transformer F and into a third tube G. In this tube the signal impulses are still further amplified in which condition they are delivered to the telephone receivers H.

This amplifier is often known as a two-stage amplifier, as it employs two tubes for this function. Other stages of amplification may be used, but special precautions must be taken in their design.

In the two-stage amplifier, it is desirable to use iron-core transformers of slightly different characteristics from each other. A convenient way to do this is to get one transformer of one manufacturer and the other of another maker. The precaution will help eliminate many of the local noises generally observable in a set of this type.

It should be noted that only one filament battery I and one common plate battery J are shown in the figure. This seems to work very well in receiving sets, and good results have been secured with only one filament-control rheostat K. It is usually preferable to use a different rheostat for each tube, so that their operation may be controlled separately.

Coupling the amplifying tubes together by high resistances in place of the iron-core transformers has been used to some extent. However, resistance coupling does not work well in the reception of signals on wavelengths less than 1,000 meters.

ELKS TAKE OPENER FROM RED MEN ON RED SEA DIAMOND

The Fraternal League baseball season was ushered in Monday evening at the Red Sea park with appropriate ceremonies at the diamond. Mayor W. S. Tish, a member of the Red Men lodge and Attorney C. Homer Durand, of the Elk's lodge was the first battery that took the field.

The mayor pitched the first ball and the attorney, who acted as backstop, caught it. After the "wet" and "dry" battery finished their end of the program, they retired and the umpire called, "play ball."

Both teams appeared on the field in snappy gray uniforms. Down the front of the Elk's uniforms were capital letters, "L. P. O. E." The Red Men suits were plain and had no name or letters on them.

The Elks were the first to bat and had as good a time in the second ingame ended in favor of the Elks by a score of 9 to 4. It was a seven inning game.

The Indians staged a pow-wow in their half of the first inning, when they made two runs. The Elks did not score in the first trial. The Elks had a good a time in the second inning as they did during the "Elk convention" in this city some time ago. They made four runs in the second. The "scalp-takers" came back in the third frame and tied the score. Everything went along smoothly until the fourth inning, when the B. P. O. E.'s broke the tie score and went into the lead by one run.

The Elks staged another rally in the first of the seventh inning and made another quartet of scores. The game ended when the Red Men failed to score in the last inning.

Laureas Davis was on the mound for the Elks. He was supported by William Gillen behind the bat and a fast infield and outfield. He pitched an effective game. The Red Men battery was James Laird, Sr., and J. Laird, Jr.

The lienup is as follows:

Red Men—B. Laird, 2b; Tidball, lf; K. Laird, ss; Smalley, cf; D. Gross, 1b; Walker, rf; J. Gross, 3b; J. Laird, p and J. Laird, c. Elks—Davis, cf; McKernan, 3b; Blinn, 1b; Unger ss; McGregor, 2b; Whittaker, lf; Johnson, rf; Gillen, c and Davis, p.

Apparently, the financial depression which has been sweeping over the world was slower in reaching Japan than Hawaii but the indications are that this country has a long period of inactivity to go thru before prosperity returns. Unemployment seems to be on the increase but there is little real suffering so far as I have observed. There is a fair amount of building and industrial expansion, the new Imperial Hotel, now almost completed in Tokyo, being a very creditable modern structure. The old Imperial Hotel building was destroyed by fire Easter Sunday.

The customs of the people and the queer houses, stores and wearing apparel are of course intensely interesting. The tram cars are unversally crowded to overflowing but the visitor is impressed with the kindness and politeness which prevail everywhere. Ask a Japanese to direct you he will draw a map of your route and loan you his umbrella and accompany you to your destination, if necessary. Time does not seem to be an important consideration over on this side of the world and one usually figures on about an hour to get a telephone call thru from Tokyo to Yokohama, a distance of 18 miles. Nobody seems to work very hard, the business hours being from 9 to 12 and 2 to 5.

The theater district in Yokohama and the Yoshiwara (red light district) are the most thrilling places we have visited. The licensed Yoshiwara girls are lined up like animals in a cage near the entrance to the houses. There is an abundance of intoxicating liquor everywhere, from the most expensive to the cheapest brands, the saloon tax being very light. Sake and tea are the most popular beverages.

There are about 1,000 foreigners (whites) in Tokyo and about 1,200 in Yokohama. They are mostly British and Russian but there is quite an American colony. Sometimes I go all the way to and from work without seeing a single foreigner on the car. My work at the office is to take the stories turned in by the Japanese reporters and translaters and whip them into readable English and put headlines on them. There are two English dailies in Tokyo and one in Yokohama. There are seven large Japanese dailies in Tokyo.

Thanks to the power of the press, my wife and I had the pleasure of attending the British Embassy ball in honor of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales last Saturday evening in Yokohama and I borrowed the managing editor's plug hat for the occasion. Julian Street, in his book entitled "Mysterious Japan," has desribed conditions here very accurately.

While it is a little different getting around over Tokyo, which is said to cover 100 square miles, as the streets and tram cars are labeled in Japanese only, it is surprising how many Japanese speak fairly good English. I mean in comparison with the number a Japanese visitor to Cleveland or Columbus would find who spoke his language. Usually there is at least one waitress in a Japanese restaurant who can understand English well enough to take your order. Sanitary conditions are not as bad in Japan as one might imagine, considering the density of population. It is considered perfectly safe to eat all kinds of meats and vegetables. A "foreigner" is, however, constantly bumping up against unexpected obstacles. For instance, a man cannot get a ready-made suit here at any price. There are no stores of that kind as the suits are all made to measure.

Major Watts's Disloyalty

THE summary dismissal of Major W. O. Watts from the Department of Justice has received no little comment in the press. As time goes on it is bound to receive more. It will receive no more than it deserves as the following extracts from an article in a current magazine amply prove:

Down at the national capital the Pooh Bah of the Department of Justice (What's in a name?) has been crying out against graft in political department, and in the process has produced a definition of disloyalty which is worth the attenton of all American taxpaying subjects. Major W. O Watts, who entered the Department as an investigator after serving in the army in France, has been summarily dismissed for "disloyalty to the Department."

According to ethical standards prevailing in the Washington bureaucracy, there would seem to be good and sufficient reason for this abrupt termination of the services of Agent Watts. He had long been looking into the contracts for the sales of surplus materials effected by the War Department. A year ago, the Government still had nearly four billion dollars worth of this surplus war-material on hand, for our politicians are liberal providers, and it has been in process of being sold off, not at a conspicuous profit, to say the least, and generally by "arrangement," rather than after competitive bidding.

Agent Watts seems to have been a fussy and recalcitrant person. The War Department had $150 million worth of surplus harness, which under special arrangement was contracted to be sold to a private company for a trivial song. Major Watts was still in the War Department when he began objecting to this casual sort of business transaction, and he continued his objections after he entered the Department of Justice. The case attracted public attention, and finally, under pressure from President Harding, Secretary Weeks ordered the contract cancelled. This showed a fine regard for public economy, save for the detail that somehow the contract never seemed to stay cancelled, and that it still hangs on.

This was one of a number of little matters unearthed by the over-inquisitive Watts. One item was that of the major with the romantic name of a Laura Jean Libbey hero. In France this major was charged by his superiors with gross irregularities, and the military intelligence started an investigation, which, according to Congressman Royal C. Johnston of South Dakota, was suddenly and mysteriously stopped. After the major got home he was naturally placed in charge of sales of surplus materials under the Quartermastergeneral. "Ample proofs have been submitted in the form of the War Department's own official documents," declares Representative Johnston, "to convict this officer of conspiracy to defraud the Government out of large sums of money."

A document of particular interest cited by the congressman is a letter from the major to his civilian brother in Seattle, giving him a fraternal tip on certain government-owned materials to be placed on sale on the Pacific Coast. "If you are interested in any of the items, just drop me a line and I will advise you how to obtain the same," wrote the officer, according to Congressman Johnston. Agent Watts, we understand, reported somewhat harshly on the activities of the major, and in due course Secretary Weeks sent to congress a recommendation that the officer with the Laura Jean Libby name be promoted to a lieutenant-colonelcy, thus demonstrating that the Department under his guidance could be as considerate as it was under his Democratic predecessor, Mr. Baker.

Agent Watts then, throwing aside all sense of decency, went to Congressman Johnston, who has been serving as chairman of a committee investigating departmental sales, and protested against this promotion. Following this, Congressman Johnston and Congressman Roy O. Woodruff of Michigan, a former service man who seems a bit concerned about the quality of democracy he has made the world safe for, made speeches in the House giving a lot of fearful and wonderful details about the sales-policy of the War Department. The press generally exercised an admirable restrain about these extraordinary addresses; but the superiors of Agent Watts noticed them, and ordered him to inform them if he had been guilty of talking to congressmen about official family matters. As soon as Agent Watts admitted such indiscretion, his dismissal for disloyalty followed. Surely every good citizen will hope that this will be a lesson to any other pubic servant who may be tempted to act on conscientious scruples about honesty or decency or a regard for the public interest.

Some of the matters cited by the two congressmen seem worth noting. Mr. Woodruff set forth that a Japanese firm was courteously permitted to defraud the Government out of $10 million on certain contracts involving governmental purchases. He told of surplus-lumber sales by which he stated the Government was mulcted of $1,854,000. The sales were arranged under the Democratic administration, but the firm that profited had at its head a Republican national committeeman; from which it may be concluded that in such matters there is a charming bi-partisan accord.

Mr. Johnston told of a sale of tinned meats for $6 million, that had cost the War Department $56 million To effect this sale, previous contracts at a higher figure were decorously cancelled by the Department. He told of a large quantity of olive-drab cloth which cost $232,000, sold for $104,000. The Department cancelled this contract and resold the cloth for $26,500, and in its report to the Congress stated, not quite truthfully, that the original cost was $60,000. He told of mosquito bars sold to a certain firm for $1 each; but the contract somehow was not carried out, and they were later sold for 20 cents each to another firm controlled by the same interests The total original cost of the bars was nearly $500,000, tho the War Department conservatively reported to the Congress that the cost was $216,000. The sale netted $19,000.

He told of some 800,000 pairs of heavy woollen socks sold to a firm at twenty-three and one half cents a pair. Seven months later the sale was reported as cancelled, and a few weeks thereafter about the same quantity of the same socks was sold at nine and one half cents a pair. He told of a quantity of left-over chocolate and other sweets, that had cost the Government $44,444.15, sold, after an inspection declaring them in good condition, for the modest sum of $335. These are only a few of the business transactions revealed by Mr. Johnston, but they are a fair sample. Some were conducted by the War Department under Mr. Baker's regime, and some under Mr Weeks's, thereby showing, probably, what is meant by "continuity of policy."

Congressman Johnston says that during the Democratic Administration, he was frustrated in attempts to get at Departmental records which he felt confident would reveal wholesale corruption. With the change of Administration he hoped to clear up some remarkably odorous mysteries, but the new Secretary of War said. "The day of investigations has passed." "Every move to secure prosecution is blocked by practically the entire War Department and a section of the Department of Justice" declared Congressman Johnston, in the speech about which the newspapers were uncommonly reticent.

Thus we can catch a glimpse of the working of political government. It is like prying up a flat stone along a country roadside, and seeing on the mucky surface beneath, a host of slimy, wriggling, crawling creatures, all frantically striving to burrow out of the light.

In the early days of the European conflict, when England's "will to war" was being solidified by those whose business it is to attend to such matters, a story was industriously circulated about an alleged visit to London by the Kaiser, Admiral von Tirpitz or some other high German functionary. The Teutonic visitor was said to have gazed rapturously about him and exclaimed: "What a city to loot!" Apparently, visiting American politicians who step out of the Union Station at Washington, and behold the shining dome of the capitol and the rows of imposing administrative buildings crowded with officials and clerks assiduously concocting contracts and leases and privileges and exemptions and purchases and sales, are thrilled and uplifted and inspired with a similar sentiment. What a city to loot! What a country to loot! Occasionally one is moved to wonder if, like the Roman augurs, two Cabinet officers can greet one another on Pennsylvania Avenue without bursting into loud peals of cynical laughter.

New York Day-By-Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, May 16—The Furious Forties have hit their summer stride. Midnight finds the cafes clotted with returning toupers—a milling drowd of gay quippers who take life as they find it. The voices of the jubilant proclaim the summer holiday. All are out of work—most of them destitute.

But they still have their scrap books and retain their press agents—those facile puffers whom Charles Dana called "the buccaneers on the high seas of journalism." They retain them tho they go hungry. There is only one hell—that is to go unnoticed.

They are waiting to storm the agencies, to join the rush to new dramatic gold fields in September. Theirs is the undying hope of the Forty Niners. Wolpin's—that little cafe that has accepted wooden clog shoes for food—finds them chanting the fervent faith until dawn brushes the sky.

The men wink at the women with an air of self confidence and receive the returning smiles as harmlessly as they meant the wink. Their greatest frailities are those to be condoned They are pleasant companions—with souls of reassurance.

In all the years I have mingled intermittently with the summer troupers I have the first whine to hear. Consummate egotists' That is true Still the most consummate egotists I know is a vaudeville "opener". He bathes in flattery and is a scandalous liar. Yet all his money goes to support three indigent actors he has never seen. He never mentions that.

At 2 o'clock a hooded figure in sandals, with a white wooly dog leaves one of the little fly by night hotels. She can only come out at night because her shoes are in pawn. She goes to Forty Sixth Street and Broadway and leads a blind news dealer home. He thinks she is a certain great star whom he used to admire before going blind. She permits him to believe it because it gives him much happiness—also her. She is a vaudeville aerial performer.

The little pull-in shops near the Pennsylvania present some high and amusing lights on salesmanship. In one window is a sign reading: "Komono—$2." The next window flaunts "Kamonos—$2.50." The third has a big placard reading: "We haven't any Komonos for $2 or Kamonos for $2.50 but we have some nice Kimonos for $3.25. We open our goods correctly as well as give the best bargains."

That was a cruel message one of the Broadway crowd sent to Jack Dempsey, when news was flashed back to America that he was to marry shortly a well known actress "One fight you'll lose" the message read.

The philosophy of contentment has a lively exponent in one of the elevator men in a downtown office building. A tenant remarked to him that he had never seen him serve as starter, and that he ought to promote himself. He replied: "That is not promotion. Promotion is going up to the top floor all the time."

One of the Broadway shops is advertising a midget barber who cuts the hair of children. Most children, the barber argues, fear their first hair cut but when it is done by one who looks like a child they have no fear whatever.

The toddle top craze died as quickly as it was born. Gamblers along Broadway say that crooked tops were being made by East Side charlatans. However, the best explanation seems to be that with the exception of poker and craps all gambling games alonz Broadway have a very short run of popularity.

YEGGS TIE WATCHMEN TO CHAIRS AND ROB STORE OF $25,000

CINCINNATI, May 16.—Six expert cracksmen, working slowly and methodically, spent six hours in the H. and S. Pogue Co. store, one of the most exclusive department stores in Ohio, Sunday night, bound and gagged two aged watchmen, blew two "burglar proof" safes and escaped with $25,000 in cash.

The robbery was discovered at 1 o'clock this morning when Patrick Collins, one of the watchmen who had been bound to a chair with picture wire, reached a telephone and called the police. Police found more than $800 in small change scattered on the floor of the offices in which the safes were looted. The watchmen told them that eight explosions of nitroglycerin had been necessary to open the safes

The yeggs gained entrance by waving a letter in front of one of the doors at six o'clock Sunday night and inducing Louis Majoewsky, one of the watchmen, to open the door. A bag was immediately thrown over his head. Neither of the watchmen were able to catch a glimpse of the faces ofthe yeggmen, they said.

WALT MASON

IMAGINARY ILLS

I often weep for Pink McGill, who lives next door but two; he thinks he is extremely ill, that shortly he'll be thru, and sleeping idly on the hill, beneath the sod and dew. He talks for hours about his aches, in wearisome despair; and yet I think his pains are fakes, a pipe dream and a snare, and he could whip his weight in snakes and never sweat a hair. If he would cease to grieve and whine about imagined pains, and say, "Today I'm feeling fine, from bootheels up to brains," his face with ruddy health would shine, brisk blood would warm his veins. Old Pink McGill would be a peach if he'd forget his ills, and cease to murmur and to reach for Dr. Fantod's pills, and fire the druggist and the leech who fill him up with squills. For he's a man of many gifts, well versed in ancient lore, and wise to all the noble gifts of bards and seers of yore; but as he is he merely lifts a bottle from the floor. Oh, he could tell us splendid tales of lonely ships and seas, of pawning steeds and armored males whose banners rode the breeze, but as he is he only wails of spasms in his knees. He shows a most indecent haste when there's new dope to try; and he is taking pills that taste like hen's nests in July; and so a good man goes to waste—and this is why I cry.

Colorful Stripes In Sweaters

The possibilities in color and design that present themselves in the popular sweater seem to have lingered until the present season, when suddenly they appeared to be exploited in a host of attractive models. From the slightest ornamental element to the full field of colored figures in Navajo effects, the sweater seems to have run the gamut of decoration.

Of special interest in the decorative development is the fearlessness with which stripes are now handled. Conscious of the danger of producing undesirable effects, the stripe in the sweater has always been the nightmare of the designer.

Today, however, the stripe has been tamed. Figuratively speaking, designers have taught it to "lie down and roll over," for the simple reason that they have mastered the elements of width and color. Indeed the numerous gorgeous results seem to indicate that they glory in their mastery.

A group of artistic sweaters with colorful stripes seen in one of the fashionable Fifth Avenue shops represented garments of silk, mohair, and silk and mohair mixed. Another shop exhibited the sweater shown here! It is a sport neck slipover of foreign alpaca yarn, Belgian lace stitch, with oriental colorings throughout the body and sleeves.

Good Night Stories

WHAT TWO LITTLE CHIPMUNKS LEARNED.

DEEP in the heart of the woods, in the hollow of an old oak tree, there once lived a family of chipmunks. They were Mama and Daddy Chipmunk, Chatty and Chippy, and the youngest chipmunk, whom they called Tippy.

They were a strange family. For every time one of them said anything, one of the others would at once declare he was wrong. This constant discord made both Mama and Daddy Chipmunk very unhappy.

One day in the very early spring when the Chipmunk family began to think it was about time to come out of their winter quarters and begin fixing up their summer home, Mama Chipmunk peeked out of the tiny doorway of their winter house and laughed merrily.

"Oh, children!" she cried. "It's a wonderful day! The sun is warm and bright. Why, it's just the kind of day to go out and see how the winter has treated the world."

"Not me," snapped Chatty, the oldest chipmunk. "The sun may be shining, but there is no telling how long it will stay out. Not me, I'm going to remain at home."

"But, my dear boy," said Daddy Chipmunk, trying not to lose his patience. "There is very little left in the storeroom, and as long as the day is so lovely, Mama and I thought perhaps we could all venture out and search for our dinner, then we wouldn't have to draw on our supplies."

"Well all who wish to go can go," snapped Chippy crossly. "I'm not venturing out."

"I'll go, even if my brothers don't," chuckled Tippy, and he ran and brushed his little suit so carefully that his brothers laughed and made fun of him.

"Must think you're going to see some one," Chatty jeered. "But you'll find that you'll be the only ones out. Now, mark what I say, before you get ready to come home it will snow," and while he and Chatty grumbled and complained about everything in general, Mama, Daddy and Tippy crawled out of the hollow.

"It's a Wonderful Day!"

They found the day lovely and warm. Every one who lived in the meadow seemed to be out, and Mama, Daddy and Tippy had the time of their lives. There was only one thing missing to make the day ideal, Chatty and Chippy.

When the sun went down the three went home tired but happy. When they told Chatty and Chippy about the great day they had had the two stay-at-homes were sorry they hadn't gone, too, and they made up their minds right then and there that they wouldn't stay in next time.

But for days and days after that first fine day it rained and snowed. As long as the food lasted the family affairs went along smoothly, but when the food supply gave out it was Chatty and Chippy who were sent out into the meadows and woods to get more. Then they wished they had gone before, for the weather was wet and cold, and they had a hard time getting the food which Chipmunk law said they must bring home.

But the next time Mama or Daddy Chipmunk suggested that they venture out, Chatty and Chippy were the very first out of the doorway.

SPRAYING WILL WIPE OUT LAWN DANDELIONS

University Worker who Saw It Done In New York Gives The Method

Dandelions can be cleaned out of a lawn by spraying with a solution of iron sulfate, two pounds of the chemical to a gallon of water. The old method of cutting them out by hand is all right, too, if your back can stand it and if you cut deep to kill the root-stock.

So agricultural extension workers of the Ohio State University stated today, answering publicly a considerable number of inquiries which have been received from Ohio landowners. E. P. Reed, soils specialist, formerly of the New York Experiment Station, is especially convinced that the spray treatment works, since it was at this station that the method was worked out, and he saw the results.

"The Station lawn was matted with dandelions," he says, "and four sprayings, two in the early summer and two after midsummer, cleaned them out by fall. Unfortunately, the treatment also kills white clover, and it is well to carry on at the same time a program of reseeding and fertilization. Keep the spray off walks, as it discolors them.

"At least four summer applications are necessary. Put on the first spray now and another one before hot, dry weather. Skip the midsummer season, and get on two more sprays before fall.

"As to cutting by hand, unless you cut deep and often all you're likely to get for your labor is a bunch of salad greens and more dandelions. Some gardeners find it helpful to put a handful of salt on the spot from which each dandelion is removed, to kill the root stalk."

SENIORS TAKE PLAY TO FRESNO FRIDAY

The Coshocton high school senior class play entitled "Green Stock'ngs," which made a big hit at the Central auditorium on Thursday and Friday nights, May 4 and 5, will be shown at the Fresno opera house on Friday night of this week

The play is given by an unusually strong cast from the senior class of the Coshocton high school. In Coshocton the play delighted the audience on both nights

In addition to the play, moving pictures will be shown between acts. A few reels of comedy pictures will be shown. The high school motion picture machine will be used in showing the pictures. It was said that this will be the first moving pictures that have been shown in Fresno.

The cast is composed of twelve characters. Miss Zoe Campbell takes the stellar role in the play. She is ably supported by the following members of the cast: Harold Hunt, Raymond Hay, Elizabeth Morse, Mary Hahn, Robert Lee, Helen Page, Janice Richardson, James Stuart, Paul Henderson, Harvey Bible and Robert Gauley.

The play will be given under the auspices of the Coshocton high school dramatic club. The advance men have been in Fresno and neighboring towns advertising the show and preparing the stage for the production.

The story of the play is laid in England during the World war and is built around the quaint old custom of England which requires that an elder, unbetrothed sister must wear green stockings at the marriage of a younger sister. Like other familiar plays, everything turns out all right and the play ends in a pleasing manner.

Troubles That Eye Strain Causes

Vanish in many cases at once when the eyes get proper attention. Often the eyes are the first cause of these annoyances. If a person has an error of vision or has reached middle life and is not wearing glasses, some annoyances are almost sure to result. The wearing of suitable glasses removes the cause and the troubles end. We have no difficulty in determining what glasses are needed.

LOGAN, May 16.—For the first time in history, rain insurance is being carried each Sunday by the local baseball team. Crowds have been large and to insure financial success the insurance feature was adopted.

ATHENS, May 16.—The majority of the board of trustees of Ohio University have voted to resign this month so as to allow Governor Davis to name a new board as provided by his reorganization measure, altho the bill provides that the trustees, elected for life, may hold office until death.

AMESVILLE, May 16.—A decided falling off in the tax returns this year from the rural districts is being reported by the assessors who are now checking up the listing of the farmers. Assessors state that many of the farmers have invested in tax-free securities and that they are feeding less stock on their farms. In Ames township alone there has been a falling off of returns from the farms of nearly $80,000 in two years.

MIDDLEPORT, May 16.—With the capture of Doug-Manley, in Maryland, following the escape of six men from the Meigs county jail, the story of the jail delivery has been related to the officers. A youth, who has been arrested, bought a file and smuggled it in to the prisoners who made a key from an old spoon handle. Leonard Larkins, 15, one of the six who got away, was arrested at Marietta and sent to the reform school at Lancaster.

ELYRIA, May 16.—Edward Burns, six, wandered away from his home at Rocky River. He was picked up on the highway and brought to this city. Mayor A. A. Jones personally returned the boy to his home, giving him his much wanted auto ride.

ELYRIA, May 16.—The trial of Miss Mary Rose Boone, pretty Owensboro, Ky., girl, charged ith stealing a $1,000 note issued by her brother, J. L. Boone, formerly of Albion, Mich., to Nicholas Bishop, of Elyria, former fiance, is scheduled to start here May 22.

Bishop charged that Miss Boone left him waiting at the altar Oct. 28, 1920, and that she was engaged to Michigan, Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky men at the same time "and said she didn't care for any of them."

Bishop claimed that he squandered $5,400 on her, including a $1,020 diamond engagement ring before being turned down.

Attorneys for Miss Boone stated that the whole affair is a frame up because Miss Boone refused to marry Bishop after she learned his wife and child by a first marriage are living and that she would have to violate a sacred church law if she and Bishop had married.

Miss Boone says it was a blank note only the signature of her brother on it that "she is being persecuted for." The decision of the court to determine whether or not a piece of paper with only a signature on it consititutes a note is expected to be an important factor in determining the outcome of the trial.

Attorney Anthony Neiding, representing Miss Boone, left Monday for Owensboro, to take depositions.

STEWARTSVILLE, May 16—Earnest McGilton, white, and Chris Smith, colored, were taken to the Bellaire hospital, the former with a bullet wound in the chest and the latter shot through the kidney as a result of a gun fight here when Smith says he found McGilton, intoxicated, creating a disturbance in front of the Smith home.

ST CLAIRSVILLE, May 16. Among 85 foreigners granted citizenship in Belmont county common pleas court was Mrs. Veronica Zamboury, of Barton. Her husband, who had taken out his first papers, died suddenly a year ago. Using her husband's papers as the basis for her application, by reason of the fact that she would have become a citizen had he been granted citizenship, she entered the class of applicants and passed the tests.

BRITISH LOOK FOR U. S. TO TAKE PART IN HAGUE PARLEY

LONDON, May 16 Downing street officials expressed confidence today that the United States would consent to participate in the allied meeting at the Hague to appoint a mixed committee to study the Russian problem unless the proposal is knocked out by the attitude taken by the Russians themselves at Genoa.

It is admitted the British officials had no material information on which to base this belief but they pointed out that in view of the attitude of America on the reported agreement between the Royal Dutch Shell group and the Russian Soviet government the U. S. would hardly find it possible to remain out.

The officials or at least some of them, hold the opinion that America wants to be in on the ground floor, when it comes time to make commercial agreements with Russia, parcel out concessions and arrange for Russian credits. In this connection it is recognized, however, that America has not recognized the Moscow government and has shown no inclination to do so.

Premier Lloyd George is expected to return to London at the end of the week if the Genoa conference does not come to an end earlier. If he arrives within that period he will probably make a statement to the house of commons next Monday.

Rumors are filtering into Downing street that Premier Lloyd George may resign on his return from Genoa. The premier's adherents point out that unless the Genoa conference collapses entirely the premier will be in a position to go before the country on a general election basing his candidacy on his settlement of the Irish situation and progress made at Genoa.

REPORT FIRST CENSUS OF OHIO FARM DRAINS

1920 Count Now Published, Reveals Much Land Still To Be Improved

Ohio returns on the first American census ever to take into account farm drainage operations, that of 1920, have just been issued from Washington in pamphlet form. The returns show that half of the farms in the Buckeye State have put in some kind of a drainage system, and that an additional 33 per cent have urgent need to do so.

As to drainage enterprises embracing more than one farm, northwestern Ohio is reported far in the lead, with "a very large proportion of farms included." The rest of the State, especially the southeast, lags behind, and such enterprises are reported to touch only 26 per cent of the improved acreage of Ohio as a whole.

Why Not Grow Soybeans If Too Late For Corn?

Have you considered soybeans for the field? They are not limited to particular soils, are not prone to attacks of disease and insects, grow with little or much moisture, grow best when inoculated with nitrogen gathering bacteria but will grow without, never become weeds; and yet the clovers in all their glory are not more productive, nor better for land and livestock than these.

Soybeans fit nicely into the rotation and help to distribute the farm labor, as they are planted immediately after corn planting and harvested in time for seeding wheat which may be drilled as soon as the soybeans are cut, without plowing the land.

Prepare the seedbed thoroly for soybeans, plant the beans with an ordinary grain drill, or, if they are to be cultivated, drill in rows 28 to 32 inches apart with grain drill or corn planter, being careful not to drill too deep. If a crust forms before the beans are up, break with a light harrow or weeder.

The soybean is a legume, and when planted for the first time in a field, does better and will enrich the soil, if inoculated with soybean nitrogen-gathering bacteria. Bulletin 312 of the Ohio Experiment Station describes the culture and uses of this valuable legume.

Corn Silage Proves Valuable Steer Feed

Keen interest in the steers fed at the Ohio Experiment Station was evinced by more than two hundred visitors at Ohio Cattle Feeders' Day. The big steers grouped by lots in the station stockyards were the center of attraction. They showed that a heavy silage ration with a restricted corn allowance at present prices was more profitable than silage with a full feed of corn. Two and one half pounds of oilmeal and what little mixed hay the steers cared for was fed in all rations.

With yearling steers there was little difference as to profitableness between a full feed and limited feed of corn, where silage was fed in both rations. However, when yearlings were fed a full feed of corn with hay, and stover instead of silage, the steers returned little or no profit, proving the high value of silage in a ration for all ages of steers.

Ohio farmers and feeders will be pleased to learn that "Cattle Feeders' Day" is to be made an annual event.

The Plan That Lillian Suggested.

THERE was a puzzled, hesitant look in Tom Chester's honest gray eyes as Lillian told him we were ready to hear his story of the pursuit of Smith. I guessed that he was far more ready in action than he was in words, especially those in which he was compelled to clothe his own valor and ability. That Lillian saw his dilemma, I realized when she spoke again, to me, in casual apologetic fashion.

"Pardon me, Madge," she said, "but I had forgotten for the minute that you know nothing of what happened after we heard Katie's scream, so I'd better pick up the dropped stitches before we go on."

I forced back the smile which trembled upon my lips at the idea of Lillian forgetting anything. She was simply using her supposed neglect of me as a broom with which to sweep conversational obstacles from Tom Chester's way, but I was tremendously glad, nevertheless, to hear more of the bizarre happenings in Katie's room.

"In the first place," Lillian resumed, "as soon as you left, I drew up the very ingenious rope ladder by which the gifted Mr. Smith descended to the ground, after his stunt of staring in at us. Or rather," she continued, with a significant little smile at me, "by which he descended part way. The last portion of his journey, I fancy, was a swift if not graceful back somersault. We were that successful at least in our shaking of the rope."

"How you women ever dared!" Tom Chester exclaimed, boyish admiration in his voice and face. "The man was desperate as a trapped rat. He might have killed you both."

Lillian's feminism flared in a second. I knew the signs by her heightened color and the glitter in her eyes, but her voice was cool and pleasant as she queried:

"It is your experience, then, that women dare less than men?"

An Embarrassed Reply.

The young chap flushed to the roots of his hair, stammered, then said resolutely:

"I should be a fool to say that after what I saw of the nurses and other women workers under fire when I was across. But I must still insist that it was an exceptional thing you did, and that the average woman, because of her training, would not have done it."

He spoke to her, he looked at me and his earnest eyes emphasized his meaning. He was stubbornly insisting upon dubbing us heroines, and I think Lillian's impersonal defence of woman in general momentarily breached its defences to admit the boyish compliment, for she laughed lightly when he had finished.

"Oh, we're heroines, all right!" she said. "We'll acknowledge the fact and smile prettily, but we'd rather discuss the rope ladder. It was a most intricate and thorough piece of work, of the finest, stanchest quality possible, and fastened somewhere on the roof above us. He must have been in Katie's room before we came up, heard us coming and hiked to the roof just in time, pulling his rope ladder up after him."

"Then," I breathed, "he must have been on the roof above us all the time we were ransacking Katie's room."

"Except the time when he was swinging on his ladder beneath heaven and earth and giving us the once-over," Lillian retorted with apparent flippancy, but I guessed that her nerves were no less tingling than mine at the thought of that sinister watch upon our movements.

Jerry Is Amused.

"Then the rope ladder is still fastened to the roof," I remarked, feeling myself flush at the banality when I saw Lillian's lips quirk into a smile.

"Not being a circus acrobat, I have not yet attempted to get it down," she said. "That will be Mr. Chester's job in a few minutes. You have a flashlight?" She turned to him.

"Two of them, and a couple of extra batteries."

"Good." She looked at him approvingly, turned back to me, caught my look of astonishment and grinned impishly. "Think a minute," she said. "A couple of shots or more in this section will arouse no curiosity. There's hardly a night but somebody fires at a cat, or a possible weasel in the chicken yard, or—in the case of our neighbors across the road—for the sheer joy of discharging a gun. But the sight of Mr. Chester on our roof in the daylight, would be a goodly titbit of gossip. Can you imagine the excitement if I sent Jerry Ticer to get that rope ladder? We might as well tell the whole story to the local newspaper."

"But," I objected, "the Ticers no doubt heard that shot from this direction. Won't Sam or Jerry be apt to investigate on our account?"

"Oh, wise young dame!" Lillian paraphrased. "They did hear the shots and did investigate. Jerry arrived, breathless and excited awhile ago, and I sent him back home again with a plausible explanation of hearing noises in the chicken-yard, but finding out afterward that it was the cow. He set off home, trying not to chuckle too audibly over the foolishness of women in general, and you and me in particular. We'll give him time to get to sleep again, and then Mr. Chester will tackle the roof and the rope ladder."

YOUR HEALTH

How You May Overcome the Causes of Inflamed Eyes

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Commissioner of Health, New York City

DR. COPELAND

YOUR first impression of any person is less favorable if his eyes are red and the lids thick. Bright eyes, with clearness of the whites, and normal appearance of the edges of the lids will help to give the desirable first impression.

Exposure to the elements—wind, bright sunshine, cold—results in redness. Just as some skins are affected by exposure, so it is with some eyes. There are persons who never sunburn and never chap. Such persons seem to have strong eyes, which are never congested or disturbed by climate or seasonal changes.

Blondes and sandy-haired individuals are more likely than brunettes to have the edges of the eyelids red or the eyeballs congested. Many a face otherwise pretty is marred in this way.

Indigestion has strange ways of advertising its presence. Styes and redness of the eyelids is one such way.

Late hours and loss of sleep may produce this disagreeable symptom. Dissipation is sure to show itself in some manner.

Chronic nasal catarrh may be complicated by catarrhal inflammation of the mucous membrane lining the eyelids. In this case the eyes stick together in the morning. The lids grow thicker slowly, and become more and more red.

The glare of sunlight at the seashore, the glare of the fire in furnace or forge, the use of the welding flame, the powerful lights of the motion-picture studio, the heat of the oven—any unusual exposure to light or heat may cause redness of the eyes.

The most common cause is eyestrain. By this I mean the usual conditions for which glasses are needed. Far-sightedness or astigmatism, the beginning of eye troubles due to increasing age, and also the lack of balance of the eye muscles are among the causes of eyestrain, which may result in redness of the eyes. Near-sightedness is less likely to produce this trouble. In near-sightedness no effort on the part of the victim will improve the vision. In all those eye defects in which effort helps to give better vision, redness of the eyes and lids is quite common. The effort is followed by congestion, and this, of course, causes the redness.

The sunlight contains light and heat rays, but also it contains what are called "actinic" rays. These are the rays capable of producing chemical change and destructive action. The photographer makes use of these rays to change the chemicals on his plate or film. When these rays strike the eye they produce discomfort and redness.

If your eyes are red, the first thing to do is to have them examined to see if glasses are needed. These glasses may be used to correct the bad sight, or they may carry lenses which are scientifically tinted to exclude the irritating rays.

Sometimes plain lenses are useful, serving to keep the wind and dust from striking the eyes. Drivers and motormen may require such protection.

It is a pretty safe rule that glasses or goggles should not be used habitually without the advice of some one competent to give it. Colored glasses worn indoors and all the time may be a cause of redness of the eyes.

Bathing the eyes in cold water or very hot water will help. An eye wash containing boracic acid may be used.

The health must be seen to and the digestive disturbance corrected. Plenty of sleep and fresh air are important. Never rub your eyes, especially with soiled fingers. Keep your face clean and your eyes free from exposure to dust and smoke.

Answers to Health Questions

J. Z. Q—What would you advise me to take for a disagreeable breath?

A—Catarrh, constipation, bad teeth or diseased tonsils are some of the causes of this trouble. The treatment depends on the cause, therefore, it will be necessary for you to consult a doctor for an examination and treatment.

T. W. H. Q—I perspire profusely all over my body. What causes this?

A—This condition is probably brought on by extreme nervousness. Eliminate coffee and tea, exercise in the open, and sleep long hours. Cut down on smoking, and cultivate peace of mind. Do not let things irritate you. If you do not improve, consult a nerve specialist.

MAC. Q—Will you please give me a remedy for granulated eyelids?

A—You should first make sure that your diagnosis is correct. Inflammation of the eyelids is very often called granulated eyelids, and, therefore, you should have a positive diagnosis made by a specialist, and follow the treatment he prescribes.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT Genius and Work

Copyright, 1922, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

AND she can't even boil an egg.

Or, make a cup of coffee.

And, she doesn't know how to have the water boiling at exactly the right temperature to produce a decent cup of tea.

And, as for setting the table, she couldn't even think of such a thing. She'd be sure to leave off the knives and forks and spoons, or something.

And, she isn't ashamed of it. She is proud of it.

She told the judge all about it in court the other day.

She is suing her husband for divorce and alimony.

Her husband is willing to give her the divorce and the alimony, too, but there is a dispute about the size of the check.

The lady who cannot boil water insists upon a maid.

The husband says he'll pay enough alimony for food and shelter, but not for a maid. He declares he does not make enough money for that.

And the judge sat right on the bench and told the lady that the best thing she could do would be to learn to cook and save the money.

Strange man, that judge!

The other day he had another case of divorce and alimony before him and the man in the case couldn't spare any money for the support of his wife and child. He didn't have any money to spare, he said.

"Aren't you a piano player?" inquired the judge politely.

"I am," replied the man, throwing back his shoulders and looking quite pleased with himself.

"A good piano player?" inquired the judge.

"Very good," said the man. "Very good, indeed."

A Real Husband

"There must be plenty of work for a man like you, with all these jazz orchestras all over town," said the judge. "Why are you idle?"

"Idle!" gasped the man. "Jazz! I wouldn't lower myself to play such stuff—I am a real musician."

"You're a real husband, too," said the judge. "And that little boy of yours looks very real to me. I am afraid you will have to go to work and help support him, artist or no artist."

The world owes me a living—that was never said on earth by anyone who had the least claim to anybody's respect.

The world doesn't owe anyone a living. We all owe the world some kind of work, some sort of usefulness, or we aren't worth living at all.

Go to Work

Step out and learn to cook, Little Sister, or make up your mind that neither your husband nor anyone else is going to pay much attention to what you want or don't want.

The artist who won't work at anything except his art. Well, that's all right for a genius, but how many of these poor "artists" are really geniuses? And how many of them are just well-meaning little men or women with a slight talent of some unimportant sort?

The truth of it is, real geniuses always work for a living at their own art, if they can, at some other affair if things are not just right at that particular time for the development of that particular genius.

Go to work, little verse writer. Get a job, little scribbler. Hunt up a position, little piano player—and take care of your family if you have to go out to dig ditches to do it.

You may never be a great artist or a compelling genius, but you can be a real man or a real woman and take an honest, self-respecting part in the world—anyhow.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I am a young man in the twenties. I have been friendly with a young lady for years, and now I realize that I am deeply in love with her, but she has been keeping company with another young man. As far as I know she is not engaged to him. Would it be proper to try to win her affection, and how would you advise me to go about it?
PATIENTLY WAITING.

PATIENTLY WAITING: Simply ask the young lady if you may call on her. Then set out to be as devoted and attentive to her as she will allow you to be, and in time you may win her affection.

Little Stories of Men and Women Whose Sayings Are Still Remembered

By MARK STUYVESANT

Why Dickens Threatened to Write "an Oyster Novel."

MANY distinguished visitors who have come to our country for the first time are very much impressed by our oysters—their size and avoirdupois. But no one had as much fun over them as Charles Dickens, the great English novelist, author of "The Old Curiosity Shop," "David Copperfield" and "Bleak House," to name but a few of his novels.

When he first left Boston, where he had landed on his arrival from England, he wrote immediately to his friend, Mr. C. C. Felton, and in the first paragraph of his letter said:

"We and the oysters missed you terribly in New York."

He followed this by saying:

"A terrible idea occurred to me. The oyster cellars, what do they do when oysters are not in season? I puzzled salmon vended there? Do they sell crabs, shrimps, winkles, herrings? The oyster openers—what do they do? Do they commit suicide in despair, or wrench open tight drawers and hermetically sealed bottles for practice? Perhaps they are dentists out of the oyster season. Who knows?"

This great humorist had much fun over an imaginary character he invented and loved to talk about—"Dando, the oyster eater." He describes his death from eating oysters and his grave decorated with oyster shells.

He never tired of talking of "Dando," and threatened to write a novel, on the title page of which was to be printed:

Oysters
in Every Style
or Openings
of Life
By Dando.

In almost every letter Dickens wrote while in America he alluded to oysters as if they were a very part of his life. They were certainly of great interest to him. He could not get over the size of them and the numbers which we relish at a meal or the number of oyster bars he saw as he traveled through our country. He actually spoke of the oysters as if it were human, and had a personality. In speaking of them in this way, he said:

"I have long suspected that oysters have rheumatic tendency. Their feet are always wet, and so much damp company in man's inside cannot contribute to his peace." And yet Dickens liked oysters. It was his fondness for them that caused him to joke about them.

"We and the Oysters Missed You."

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Describes a Charming Navy-Blue Frock for Street Wear.

IT was a dark, cloudy day, and I had fussed around madly in the morning, trying to find something appropriate to wear.

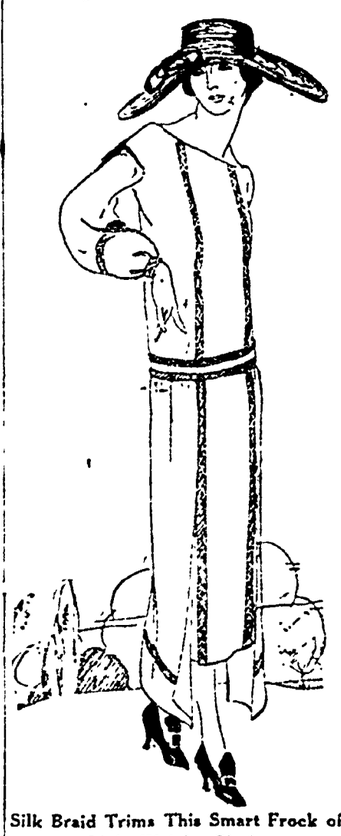

"Jane will have on something trim and smart and will look as fresh as a daisy, I know," I confided to the girls. "I'm going to meet her for lunch, and she's the kind of person who always looks so well dressed and beautifully groomed that she makes one feel almost shabby."

"Goodness, what an uncomfortable person to have around!" exclaimed one of the girls.

"It doesn't affect me that way," I commented. "Usually, after a session with Jane, I go home, pull out my best clothes and wonder how they can be made over to look brand new and better still."

"Well, it isn't bad to have someone who inspires you to that," the girls agreed.

I indulged in a shine, after having carefully adjusted my veil and pulled on my new gloves. Then I sallied forth to meet Jane.

Silk Braid Trims This Smart Frock of Light-Weight Cloth.

I saw a slim figure before me in the hotel lobby, and though her back was turned at first, I knew it was Jane.

"That's a chic little frock," I remarked as soon as we had exchanged greetings. "It is a French thing, I'll bet."

"Well, it does happen to be," said Jane, modestly. "But first of all, please admire my hat. I just bought it and was terribly afraid I was going to be late, for it took much trying-on to find the right one."

"I can see with half an eye it is the right one," I rejoined, approvingly, noting the thin hair-braid hat with a colorful flower at one side.

"What an interesting flower!" I said. "I like the bluish-crimson tone and the heavy stem coiled around as a background."

"It's of rubber," Jane said. "It's a new note to me, but the milliner said she had been using them for a season or two."

"Yes, Madame used some on her hats," I rejoined. "They all seemed to come in the loveliest possible colors."

"I'm glad you like my dress," said Jane. "I like it tremendously and it was just luck, my stumbling across it at one of the little shops I go to sometimes."

"What is the material?" I asked. "It seems to be very light in weight, and still it looks like woolen."

"It's an imported novelty cloth," answered Jane, "a mixture of wool and silk, I think. While it looks rather tailored, you've no idea how cool and comfortable it is."

"It is decidedly Frenchy," I observed with my head on one side.

"Don't you think the Persian-looking silk braid is rather fascinating?" Jane asked. "I loved the crimson tones of it so. I think that was really why I fell for the dress."

"It is a thoroughly-smart costume," I said. "I envy you, having something so attractive and suitable for these cool days when anything too summer-like looks a bit washed out."

We wandered in to a luncheon table and planned our afternoon as we ordered. We were both interested in shoes and decided to look at some that afternoon.

"I want some with colonial buckles and stand-up tongues," I observed.

"And you must help me to select a pair to wear with my beige suit," said Jane. "I think beige suede and black patent leather are smart together, don't you?"

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY, MAY 17.

The prospects for an active and gainful day are strongly indicated in the planetary configurations. With Mercury and Jupiter under excellent Lunar transit, all manner of mercantile and professional pursuits should thrive with the Jupiter influence strengthening financial returns and expanding business opportunities. There may be, however, some menace through intrigue, deception or fraud, and also the health may be a matter of concern or hindrance. An opening for a beneficial change may present itself.

Those whose birthday it is have the forecast of a year of prosperity and expanding business, with good opportunities, but they should be on guard against deception, and should give the health careful attention. A child born on this day will be generous and good-hearted, but may prove somewhat untrustworthy unless carefully trained in early life. It may make its best success in the employment of others.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

Are You Interested in the Latest Fashionable Desk Fittings?

A DESK is to most of us a dear and intimate possession, and anything in the way of attractive fittings appeals to all who keep their desks dainty and up-to-date. For the drop-leaf desk, there is nothing prettier than a yellow blotter bound in black leather, and the new black glass fittings. There is a great variety in the shape of the fittings, which should be chosen to suit both the desk and the room where it is to stand.

For a young girl's desk there are smart little sets of different colors. These pieces are of moire silk covered with thin celluloid, which looks like highly-finished fancy leather. The blotters are rimmed with silk and celluloid to match the pieces. Fancy quill or feather-tipped pens match the blotters in color.

Brass, bronze, black glass or dark leather sets are the thing to get for men-folks' desks; the blotters supplying the needed high light.

For younger desk owners there are wee sets covered in Mother Goose cretonne, protected with celluloid, and the sets may be wiped off with a damp cloth when dusty or dulled by sticky finger-prints.

For those who do not have a regular desk, but use a flat-topped table with drawers, there are leather cases and pads which are very attractive, and which offer a modicum of privacy for letters. Men as a rule like table desks for there is so much available room on the top, but women favor the old-fashioned desks with lots of little drawers and pigeon holes.

With the changing of other fashions, letter-paper has changed, also, from the styles that were correct when our mothers were young. Correspondence cards, formerly three or four by five inches in size, with gold-lined edges, have given way to cards twice their size with big envelopes to match, lined with gorgeously-colored or silver, gold and metal-striped paper. Letter paper in tan and gray has deckel or torn edges, and the envelopes are large enough to slip the paper in without folding.

Most of the paper and envelopes have monograms which are more or less complicated, and they usually match the color lining of the envelope. More conservative women still insist upon plain heavy linen paper. Women who live out-of-town for part or all of the year often use stationery with the railroad station, and under that the 'phone number and exchange engraved at the top, and with the postal telegraph and street number or the bottom line. The station may be indicated by a wee picture of an engine, the 'phone by a small instrument, and the postal telegraph by a telegraph pole. This makes everything clear to the week-end visitor. The printing is small, so it does not take up more room than a monogram.

Others have the address and 'phone but in the left-hand upper corner of the letter paper, and on the flap of the envelope as we. The envelopes best liked for these papers are rectangular in shape, not the extreme sizes.

Stamping with sealing wax is no longer done by the more fashionable people. The paper seals that were brought out awhile ago cheapened the idea, and it was dropped by women who keep posted on these little changes of fashion.

In fitting up the wee desk there are several varieties of paper that are decorated with nursery rhymes, figures, birds, animals, characters from "Alice in Wonderland," and other things that interest children, but it is a good idea to teach the youngsters that while these papers are all right to use when writing to little friends, plain paper of good quality is the thing to use when writing to a grown-up friend or relative.

Respect the privacy of both little and big desks, for the contents are dear to the hearts of their owners.

WOMEN'S VOTE IN

make it effective in votes. The nation is turning to Pennsylvania for leaders, let us not disappoint it Indiana made good—Pennsylvania will do the same -- Pennsylvania will stand for the "Roosevelt square deal."

The Alter spokesman said they did not anticipate a heavy vote They predicted that not more than 60 to 75 per cent of the registered Republican voters in cities and town would turn out, and that in the country districts the vote would be much lighter. They figured that Alter would receive a majority from 85,000 to 100,000 in Philadelphia and of about 50,000 in Allegheny and that he and Pinchot would break about even in the rest of the state. The minimum majority Alter would receive in the entire state they estimated at 110,000.

Previous estimates of an majority of from 240,000 to 255,000, they admitted to be exaggerated

The Pinchot side predicted that Pinchot's majority would be at least 150,000 and state Senator Long, his campaign manager declared Pinchot would win everything outside of Philadelphia and that he would only lose that city by 51,000.

Democratic leaders and others watching the fight from the sidelines declared that both the Alter and Pinchot forecasts were extravagant and that the contest would be close, with the final result likely to remain in doubt until long after the polls closed

Whatever the result of the contest, the friends of U. S. Senator George Wharton Pepper predicted that he would run far ahead of the vote received by either Alter or Pinchot and that he would be nominated by a majority which would swamp Congressman Burke, his opponent for the seat in the senate

Burke has waged his fight to prevent Pepper from being returned to the seat formerly held by the late Senator Penrose on Pepper's opposition to the soldier bonus and his vote to help prevent the unseating of Senator Newberry of Michigan. Burke has also appealed to the labor vote against Pepper, whom he charges as being the representative of big interests.

SCHOOL

know how to make Samples of the cooked foods will be served. No food will be sold, and there will be no booths.

Next Tuesday the program will cover lessons in deep fat frying and making Mayonnaise Dressing and Salads.

The cooking experts will make fritters and doughnuts, giving demonstrations and lectures as they prepare them.

Mr. Leslie is adding the instructions in making dressing and salads to the program of deep fat frying day, so those who will not be able to attend next Friday May 26, will not miss the lessons He said yesterday.

"Instead of following the general program we have followed in most other Ohio cities, in Coshocton we will add a lesson on mayonnaise dressings and salads to Tuesday's deep fat frying program.

"The average American family has not learned the health giving properties of crisp, green salads, with their mineral salts and the water soluble "B" vitamines which are so necessary to the proper functioning, and even to life itself, of animals subjected to diet tests Neither has the average family learned the health giving value of vegetable oils and fats, their effect in promoting nutrition, sparing protein and overcoming the tendency to waste associated with 'deficiency disorders.'

"Unless you 'balance' your diet, you cannot be well You must have leafy vegetables, fruits, peas, beans, dairy products, and all other vitamine carrying foods You may take more than the required number of calories, but unless you include the vitamines you will not have a correct diet

"That is why we are adding mayonnaise dressing and salads to our next Tuesday program It will give the women of Coshocton and vicinity an opportunity to learn how to make the right kind. Friday May 26, will be the day for salad and mayonnaise day, so if you have failed in making a perfect one the experts will be able to correct you."

Wednesday May 24 will be pastry day Housewives frequently find pastries one of the most difficult things they have to bake. The experts will give some hints that will help them bake crisp and delicious crusts, as well as to demonstrate the right way to bake cream puffs, eclairs, ramekins and other delicacies.

Thursday May 25 will be cake day. Several kinds of cakes will be baked and served

Friday will be devoted to a review of the preceding lessons and to instructions in making salads and mayonnaise dressing.

Many such schools have been conducted by newspapers in Ohio, and were well attended. Everyone interested is invited to come.

DELEGATES MEET IN ATTEMPT TO SETTLE BOUNDARY DISPUTE

WASHINGTON, May 16—Asserting an agreement by the delegates assembled would furnish the world with a "needed and inspiring example of the practice of peace" Secretary of State Hughes at noon today ushered into being the Tacna Arica conference called by President Harding in the hope of finding a solution of the long standing boundary dispute between Chile and Peru.

No event has ever been contemplated by the American republic with deeper interest and more fervent hope than this conference, Mr. Hughes told the delegates. By it, the representatives of the two participating nations were afforded the privilege and responsibility of an exceptional opportunity to make an enduring contribution to the peace of the world, he declared.

CINCINNATI, May 16. — "Heart balm totalling $25,000" was awarded to Frank Madje, a mechanic employed here, this morning as the result of a suit filed by Madje charging Ben Rahe, former owner of a packing plant here, but now in San Francisco, with alienation of the affections of Mrs. Madje. WASHINGTON ADOPTS EARLIER TIME FOR DAYLIGHT SAVING

WASHINGTON, May 16— The national capitol's new daylight saving scheme, unofficially designated as "ragtime," went into effect this morning, marked by great confusion because part of the city went to work an hour earlier than usual and the rest elected to adhere to the old schedule

Under President Harding's executive orders thousands of government clerks were compelled to be at their desks at 8 o'clock Some of them were, but others came trailing in with the excuse that the street car companies failed to furnish enough cars to care for the early morning rush.

ANOTHER PARLEY IS ARRANGED IN ERIN

UNCLE SAM ISSUES NEW BOOZE PERMITS TO SAVE CELLAR FROM FORGERS

COLUMBUS, May 16—That rigid lines are to be drawn immediately in respect to the issuing of permits for withdrawals of alcohol for medicinal and manufacturing purposes, and that new forms of withdrawal will be used exclusively in the future is the announcement made here today at the offices of J. E. Russell, federal prohibition director for Ohio.

The announcement followed a conference between Director Russell, E. C. Yellowlee, Washington, head of the federal government's general prohibition agents; Dr. W. O. Matthews, Washington, assistant prohibition commissioner and Al A. Melahn Toledo, in charge of District 12, comprising Ohio, Indiana and Michigan.

It is quite probable, it was stated, that the amount of liquor to be allowed on prescriptions will be limited to one quart for emergency purposes.

Hereafter it was declared all alcohol will be issued only on permits which are peculiarly "water marked" and which cannot be forged. These new forms are in the hands of the printers and will be used in Ohio within a few days, it was announced. The conference here was similar to one held in Louisville last Thursday. Federal dry officials said that efforts are to be made along the line to render the sale of alcohol more difficult for those who use it in violation of the federal prohibition amendment.

CHICAGO PLICE QUIZ WIFE OF BARTENDER ON BOMB MURDERS

CHICAGO, May 16—Margaret Miller 32, wife of the identified driver of the death car from which two policemen were shot and killed last week in Chicago's bomb and gun war was arrested today.

Questioning the woman, the police believe will reveal the inside operations of the terrorist gang which held forth in a west side saloon where her husband John Miller, was a bartender.

While Mrs. Miller was being held in custody, law enforcement officials went into conference to prepare their case against the alleged "higher ups" —"Big Tim" Murphy, "Frenchy" Mader and "Con" Shea. Reported confessions of the three men under arrest as occupants of the "death car" from which policemen Thomas Clark and Terrence Lyons were shot, were to be gone into.

Bloodhounds were leading the posse thru thickets. Machine guns, rifles, and sawed off shot guns were the weapons depended upon to dislodge the desperadoes if they attempt a "last stand."
